

Job Opportunity – Occupational Infectious Disease Nurse

Vanderbilt University and Medical Center is seeking a Registered Nurse to coordinate, develop and lead occupational health infectious disease programs, including primary prevention and exposure management in patient care and biomedical research settings. Registered Nurses with experience in Occupational Health in a healthcare facility, Public Health, and/ or Infectious Disease management are preferred for this position. A strong background in research or data analysis is desirable. CIC or COHN certification or willingness to become certified is desirable. Applicants must be licensed to practice nursing in TN or eligible to apply.

A non-profit institution of higher education and academic medical center in Nashville, TN, Vanderbilt employs over 25,000 faculty and staff working in education, research and health care. Vanderbilt has received the ACOEM Corporate Health Achievement Award, the C. Everett Koop National Health Award, was recognized as one of the 100 Healthiest Workplaces in America in 2014, has won the Healthiest Employer of Middle Tennessee Award for the last 4 consecutive years, and incidentally holds the Guinness World Record for most vaccinations given in an 8 hour period.

The Occupational Health Clinic provides onsite care for work injuries and acute illnesses, medical surveillance and work clearance for over 30 different workplace hazards, and primary prevention programs such as immunizations and ergonomics. Our collaborative practice currently includes 4 physicians, 5 nurse practitioners, and a team of specialized nurses and support staff.

The position offers a competitive salary, vacation and CEU's, a generous benefits package with an attractive retirement plan, comprehensive medical/dental insurance, malpractice insurance, and a tuition benefit for employees and dependents.

Learn more about us at <http://occupationalhealth.vanderbilt.edu>

Send CV and cover letter to:

Catherine Qian MS, BSN, NP-C, CRNI

Manager, Vanderbilt Occupational Health Clinic

<mailto:catherine.qian@vanderbilt.edu>

1211 21st Avenue South, Suite 640

Nashville, TN 37212-1343